EDITORIAL COMMENT.

DESTRUCTION.

Down in Memphis, Tennessee, is an obscure individual who proposes to right all wrongs of the nation by destroying the banking system. He has sent out a "manifesto" to the American people, full of the customary twaddle about plutocracy, in which he aims to set forth how the people can restore their rights. He assumes, of course, that the people have lost their rights, and that they are waiting for him to arrive, in order that they may learn from his inspired lips the secret of redistributing the wealth of the nation. His remedy is to boycott the banks.

It is clear that the Memphis prophet has no claim upon our attention, except as he represents a class of rag chewers, who may be important enough to warrant a few words of comment. The world is made up of all kinds and conditions of men, and to understand the world, one must pay sympathetic regard to the talkative fool, as well as to the man of silent intelligence. The origin of the talkative fool is two fold. His folly is native, while his talkativeness is cultivated by his great familiarity with yellow journals and writings by self-seeking politicians. If he has no suggestions of his own, he rushes blindly into any and all suggestions that are presented to him. His life is glorious, indeed, if he can outline a cure-all by which to send his name resounding down the centuries.

The keynote of the philosophy promulgated by the order of rag chewers is the power of the people. If it is once discovered that the people can do a thing, the problem is settled. There is never any question about their doing it. It is certainly possible for all the people to boycott the banks, and it is likewise possible for them to elect an obscure Tennessee reformer president of the United States. But there is more than possibility in intelligent reform. Without the will to do there is nothing done, and the will to do is always backed up by a conception of the advantage to be derived from doing it. Hence it is that intelligent reformers are not those who are looking for a chance to destroy something, but those who perceive tendencies and prepare themselves with practical devices to meet the need when it is demanded.

The chief pity is that so much mental energy is wasted in addressing the American people. If only a few were guilty, there could be no objection to this form of private amusement, but the number of rag chewers is insufferable and the amount of intellectual horse-power so expended upon nothing is doubtless considerable. Such a waste of natural resources should receive the attention of our vigilant president.—Mining Record.

REPUBLICAN TICKET SURE WINNER

for labor and the highest wages industry may pay and be successful. We believe in the compulsory protection of the health, life and limb of employees, and in arbitration as the best means of settling difficulties arising out of labor controversies.

We favor the passage of some measure to more rigidly protect the purchasers of mining shares from fraudulent misrepresentation.

We are proud of our national irrigation system, which was fathered by a Republican administration and put into working operation under its guidance. We pledge every support and co-operation to make this great system a complete success within the boundaries of the state.

BANKING LAWS.

The Republican party of this state condones with the citizens of Nevada, whose thousands of dollars found embayment in tottering banks and unsound financial institutions. Inadequately though the law may be, conscientious, efficient and vigorous enforcement of the so-called banking act by the Nevada Democratic administration would have protected the confiding and innocent depositor, and saved for him his daily earnings and life-time savings. The functions of a bank commissioner and a bank examiner, as prescribed by substantive law, are to investigate and report before financial disaster, with a view to avoiding and preventing it, and not to report upon bank wreckage and ruins after the crash has come. Fearless and faithful investigation of the banks of this state by public officials, sworn to do their duty; an honest desire to protect the people, as well as the banker, to shield the innocent depositor from careless, rash and unbusiness-like banking methods would have turned a maelstrom of disaster into channels of protection and security. We favor imperative and radical changes in the banking laws of this state. A separate commission, the personnel of which should be citizens of unquestionable honor and integrity should be made, a primal feature of the new law. We are opposed to state officials acting as bank commissioners ex-officio. Safe bank reserves should be insisted upon; prescribed conservatism of loans should be demanded, and every legislative and administrative device, consistent with business banking and absolute protection to depositors, should be amply and rationally considered in order that financial deflation should cease to exist in Nevada. We favor the passage of a stringent banking law, preventing the organization of banks without adequate resources to safeguard depositors from loss, and making the private fortunes of bank stockholders to an amount equal to par value of their stock, subject to execution on the bank's defaulting its obligations.

LAW AND ORDER.

We, as a party, stand firmly and unequivocally for law and order, and the passage and enforcement, without abuse, of such laws as shall maintain the peace and tranquility of the state, and which shall protect all of our people in life, liberty and property, and we condemn the Democratic party of Nevada for its failure to enforce the laws and to conserve the interests of the people, and we further condemn Democratic extravagances in creating useless and expensive state offices.

We believe in fostering to the highest degree the public school system of the state, and we urge the utmost generosity in support of our state university.

FLANIGAN AND NIXON.

We commend and endorse the course and acts of Senator George S. Nixon in the senate of the United States.

We believe in the election of a bona fide citizen of Nevada to succeed Hon. Francis G. Newlands as United States senator. It is unjust and unfair to our people that the highest office in the gift of the state should be held by one who is a citizen only for political purposes and is an alien to us in sympathy. The Republican party of Nevada submits the name of Hon. P. L. Flanagan of Washoe county, for United States senator, as a citizen typical of the state and its people, able, competent, sincere and honest, and in every way qualified to represent us in Washington.

The Republican party of Nevada sends greeting to the Republican party of the other states. On November 3 the battle born state will help swell the national victory for prosperity, good government, Taft and Sherman, and a clean sweep.

The platform was adopted as read.
